

Gravers Lane Station 1872 - 300 E. Gravers Lane.

This is one of the few surviving buildings by Frank Furness, who, as chief architect of the Reading Railroad, designed about 130 stations and industrial buildings. His bold style fell out of fashion, and many of his buildings were demolished in the early 20th century.